HISTORY

1744 Established in 1744 in Saint Petersburg by order of Empress Elizabeth, the daughter of Peter the Great, the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory became the first porcelain company works in Russia and the third one in Europe.

1762–1801 Upon enthronement of Catherine II (1762–1796), the manufactory was reorganized and renamed the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory in 1765. From then onward, it was to «satisfy the needs of entire Russia in porcelain». The end of the XVIII century is considered to be the Golden Age of Russian porcelain. The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory was one of European leaders. With such grand dinner sets as Arabeskovy, Yakhtinsky and Kabinetsky numbering up to a thousand items, the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory reached the pinnacle of fame.

1801–1825 During the reign of Alexander I (1801–1825), the Russian porcelain not only glorified the deeds of the Emperor but also conveyed national ideas and attitudes. For example, Guryevsky dinner set is an ode to the people who won the Patriotic War of 1812. Vases played a special part in the manufactory output from the early years of Alexander I's reign and till the 1860s. Gold became one of the favorite decorative materials, while landscapes and battle scenes dominated painting.

1825–1894 The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory provided almost all St. Petersburg palaces with its dinner sets during the reign of Alexander I and Nicholas I. The replicas are notable for their striking accuracy and refinement. The palette of pure and brilliant colours is in perfect accord with the originals. At the same time, portrait, icon and miniature painting on vases and panels also gained momentum. The awards of world fairs in London, Paris and Vienna proved the leadership of IPM in porcelain painting. The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory celebrated its 100th anniversary by establishing its own museum in 1844.

Empress Elizabeth

1894–1912 Owing to the technical innovations developed earlier, the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory reached top performance during the reign of Nicholas II (1894–1917), the last Emperor of Russia. Rich art technique is an infinite source of pride of the IPM which gave birth to the acid-proof and electrical porcelain during World War I.

1920 The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory was nationalized and renamed the State Porcelain Manufactory in 1918. It came under the control of the People's Commissariat for Education which set a task to turn the former Imperial Manufactory into the «republican pilot laboratory of ceramics», where «propaganda porcelain in the highest sense of this word» would be made, «revolutionary in content, perfect in its shape and flawless in workmanship».

PRE-WAR PERIOD The Leningrad Porcelain Manufactory was the first in the USSR to open the art laboratory in 1930s when the Soviet culture started forming. The creative team headed by Nikolay Suetin, an apprentice of Kazimir Malevich, invented the new Soviet porcelain style in tune with the «socialist way of life».

AFTER WORLD WAR II The Khrushchev's Thaw of the 1960s revived such art slogans of the 1920s as «Bring art to everyday life» and «Bring art to production environment». After the pompousness and excessive decoration typical of the Stalin's period, the interest in white porcelain, laconic design and simple shape was rekindled.

OUR TIME Respect for heritage coupled with continuous development and regular renovation of artistic traditions is still a hallmark of St. Petersburg porcelain school. Each of our artists found their own style in the art of porcelain, contributing to the decorative diversity and emotional vividness of the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory products.

MANU-FACTURING PROCESS

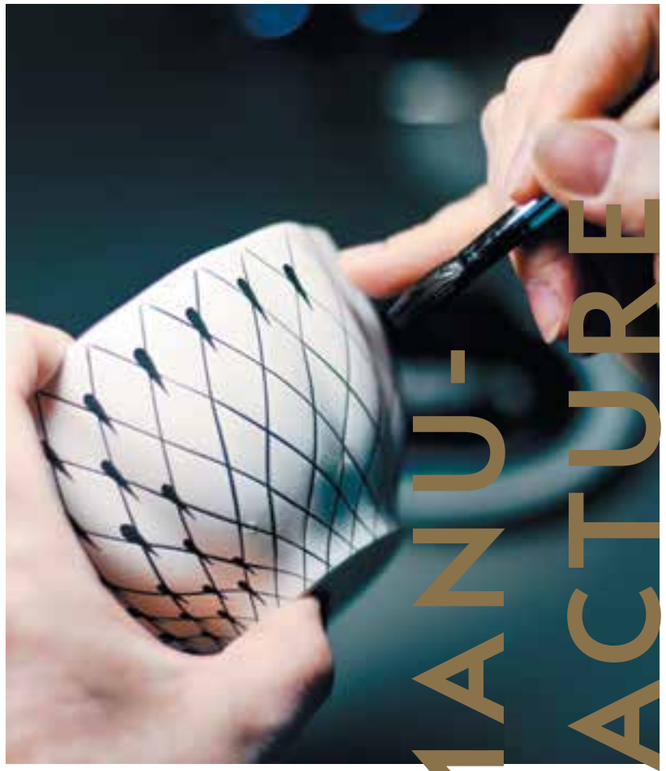
The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory offers about 4 000 products varying in shapes and patterns: tea, coffee and dinner sets, individual tableware, gifts and souvenirs, genre and animal sculptures, decorative dishes, plates, etc. They are made of hard-paste, soft-paste and bone porcelain.

The porcelain manufacturing process is rather complex. For example, up to 80 process steps are required to make a cup. The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory preserved the essence of the classic porcelain technology developed by D. I. Vinogradov, the founder of Russian porcelain industry, as early as the 18th century. The 'soft' porcelain formula was developed at the Manufactory in the early 19th century by famous chemist Nikolai Kachalov. Fine bone china is remarkable for its high degree of whiteness, delicacy, and lightness, similar by its characteristics to the renowned ancient Chinese porcelain known as 'eggshell'. The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory developed the egg-shell bone porcelain technology 50 years ago and was the first in Russia to release the commercial batch of articles of increased fineness and transparency.

The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory products are decorated with hand or machine-made overglaze and underglaze painting, or a combination of these, with paints based on rare and precious metals.

HAND MADE SUPER HIGH QUALITY

The success of the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory's products is a big merit of their creators: sculptors and painters. The Manufactory's creative team today includes well-known names in the world of porcelain, such as Associate Member of the Russian Academy of Arts and Distinguished Artist of Russia Inna Olevskaya, Distinguished Artists of Russia Tatyana Afanasieva, Nelya Petrova, and Galina Shulyak, artists Tatiana Chapurgina, Sergei Sokolov, Tatiana Charina and Nina Troitskaya. These names are supplemented by the names of talented young artists who continue to develop the glorious traditions of the St.Petersburg school of porcelain. Many works applied art produced at the factory are exclusive: hand-made and one-of-a-kind.



MANU-FACTURE

The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory is world-famous for its sophisticated hand-made painting. A wide range of articles is decorated with natural gold and engraved pictures. The majority of tableware, vases and almost all animal sculptures are underglazed. Owing to one of our most popular combinations - deep underglaze cobalt coupled with bright overglaze colour and gold, the eye-catching products of the IPM look especially spectacular.

The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory managed to preserve such unique technologies as cobalt covering and underglaze landscape painting that date back to the end of the XIX century.

A new casting and moulding workshop with high-technology equipment is expected to be launched in the short run. The IPM successfully applies advanced 3D modelling technology to accelerate mould development process and, as a result, offer you an increasing number of new products.

ARTISTIC HAND-PAINTED COLLECTION

The Imperial Porcelain Manufactory has always been a place where famous painters and sculptors were trained and groomed in full accordance with noble artistic traditions and has been produced custom porcelain items. Before the revolution of 1917, first of all, these the orders of the Russian Imperial court to produce and complete the existing sets and items for interior decoration of imperial residences. Throughout the XX century the factory implemented governmental orders and orders for large corporations, diplomatic gifts, produced sets for official receptions in honor of the significant events in Russian history. At the beginning of XXI century, the factory began to produce a replica of the most significant works made in XVIII-XIX centuries.

COLLECTION

The form was recreated based on the samples dated 1827-1829 from the collection of the State Hermitage Museum.

The painting was applied by T. V. Afanasyeva.

The form of the "Golden Eagle" tea set was recreated following the form of the "Sobstvenny" ("Personal") tea set that had been made at the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory in 1827-1829 specifically for the Cottage Palace, built in the Alexandria Park in Peterpof by architect A. A. Menelas for Empress Alexandra Feodorovna, the wife of Emperor Nicholas I. Like the whole decor of the Palace, this tea set (created in the "Gothic taste") fits seamlessly into the interior which was distinguished by a rare stylistic unity of the decoration and artistic furnishing, as well as by elegance and refinement.

The refined and elegant painting by artist Tatyana Afanasyeva that was designed as a classic combination of blue cobalt and white porcelain with rich gold ornaments, made it possible to create a truly grand ceremonial tea set. All items of the "Golden Eagle" tea set are decorated with the State Emblem of the Russian Federation designed by artist E. I. Ukhnalev in 1993.

Porcelain; overglaze polychrome painting, gilding, diverging pattern.

The armorial set was commissioned in 1827 by Tsar Nicolas I for Pavlovsk Palace, the residence of the tsar's mother, the Dowager Empress Maria Fyodorovna (wife of Paul I). It comprised 240 plates and 48 oval dishes, with a depiction of the coat of arms of Nicholas I of the centre of each item. All the pieces were decorated with green borders, surmounted with a delicate and elaborate Empire gold pattern. The abundance of gold gave this service its other name — Golden Service. The original set is displayed in the State Hermitage.

The set was originally manufactured during the years 1827-1829 at the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory for the small Cottage Palace at Peterhof, the private residence of Tsar Nicolas I and his wife Alexandra Fedorovna (hence the name of the shape —Alexandria).

The palace itself was designed by the Scottish architect Adam Menelaws in Neo-Gothic style. The service was designed to coordinate with the interior decor of the palace. All the items are emblazoned with the coat of arms of Alexandria, and the motto "For Faith, Tsap and Fatherland". The original service is displayed in the State Hermitage.

This shape was first created at the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory at the beginning of the XIX century, for the Peterhof Cottage Palace, built in Neo-Gothic style by the Scottish architect Adam Menelaws, as the private residence of Empress Alexandra Fedorovna, wife of Nicolas I. The artist Bogdanova decorated this famous porcelain shape with refined and elegantly costumed figures. The decorative table objects of the service were painted with magnificent flower bouquets, friezes and discrete dahlias and roses, composed in rectangular lockets and set off with a rich gold decor. The classical composition is harmoniously combined with the ancient motifs of particularly in the predominance purple and gold painting which give regal splendor to this gala service. The gold filigree ornament is accentuated with semiprecious agate.

Anna Nosova, who designed the «Fantastic butterflies» pattern, worked for many years alongside Alexei Vorobyevsky. She meticulously studied his artistic style, masterfully copying his fairytale pictures with the filigreed precision of porcelain calligraphy. Anna Nosova based her «Fantastic butterflies» on the motifs of Vorobyevskiy, preserving all the warmth, the luscious palette and ornament of his works.

Vorobyevsky never used preliminary sketches, he just painted on "a clean slate" no matter how sophisticated the picture was. His delicate painting style would start with fine feather sharp pen lines of the general contour of the picture and then he would use a pen or the finest brush to fill up contours with multi-colored paints as if it were a mosaics panel. The artist had an immaculate feeling of balance harmony between fine bone china and decor, his decorations invariably enhance and underline almost airy, delicately thin fragility of porcelain surface.

The "Coat of Arms" form was restored according to the design of the second half of the XIX century from the collection of the State Hermitage Museum.

The "Belvedere" set is a modern replication of the "Babigon" set created at the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory in 1824 for the Grand Peterhof Palace. The main decorative pattern used in the design is an ornamental ribbon, which is a garland of golden stylized leaves on a gray background framed by delicate purple layers. In the middle of the XIX century, the set ensemble was transferred to the Belvedere Palace, built on Babigon Hill in Peterhof by the architect A. I. Stackenschneider.

The artist of the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory Lyubov Tsvetkova transferred the painting of the "Babigon" set to the "Coat of Arms" form, restored on the model of the "Set with the image of the Russian coat of arms on a cobalt background" of the second half of the XIX century. The modern replication is called "Belvedere" in honor of the palace in which its historical prototype existed.

Porcelain; overglaze polychrome decoration, gilding.

COBALT NET
COLLECTION

This set – elegant golden blue ornament against the white background – thanks to a well-found accurate rhythm, unusual subtlety of lines and the color balance has became a "hallmark" of the factory over the years. Anna Yatskevitch, the author of design, has based her painting on the motifs of the first service from porcelain creator — D.I. Vinagradov, which he produced for Empress Elizaveta Petrovna in the 1750s.

Over time, the "Cobalt Net" pattern has become not only a hallmark of the first porcelain factory in Russia, but also the symbol of the city, the picture of the classical St. Petersburg's style. The service with the legendary painting is represented in the collections of the largest museums in Russia and abroad.

DESIGN BY ANNA YATSKEVICH

HISTORY

In Leningrad, during the time of war, artist Anna Yatskevitch (1904–1952) created painting of the service "Cobalt Net" in 1944 for the 200th anniversary of the manufactory establishment, which at that time was known as the National Porcelain Factory named after Lomonosov. "Cobalt Net" on the shape of the "Tulip" service, created in 1936 by the sculptor S.E. Yakovleva is replicated at the factory since 1950. In 1958, at the first post-war World Exhibition in Brussels "EXPO'58", set service was awarded the Gold Medal for the harmonious combination of the form and painting. In 1996–1999, the artist of the factory, G.D.Shulyak, Honoured Artist of the Russian Federation, created the painting of dining and gift items. Later, the painting was adapted for the objects made from thin-walled bone china. Now the "Cobalt Net" service has grown to a multi-set ensemble including more than 100 items.

BAIKAL

SHAPE: TULIP

The author of the painting: V. Bakastova.
Vera Bakastova was inspired to create a new collection by the Japanese art of Kintsugi –yap. "golden patch") - a technique for restoring ceramic products using varnish mixed with gold, silver or platinum powder.
The philosophy of kintsugi art is that any breakdowns and cracks are an important part of the history of the object. Restoration seams are not hidden, but, on the contrary, are revealed as a precious and unique experience, reminding of the vicissitudes of fate.
The items of the collection are united by a gold ribbon imitating the restoration seam, which holds together the "fragments" of the cobalt decor. The combination of the smooth surface of porcelain and golden lines gives rise to associations with Baikal ice, which determined the name of the collection.

Porcelain; underglaze monochrome decoration; gilding.

SCARLETT

Items from the collections “Scarlett” and “Azur” are distinguished by exquisite decor, which is a modern variation on the theme of the famous painting of the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory “Cobalt Grid”, the prototype of which, in turn, is Elizabeth Petrovna's Own set of the middle of the XVIII century.
Like historical prototypes, the painting, executed in the XXI century, is modeled on the “treillage” popular in the middle of the XVIII century, meeting the tastes of the Rococo period. The strict geometric decor, which sets the basic rhythm, is softened by the artist Yulia Chistyakova with monochrome color fills and golden accents in the form of different-sized images of the Christmas star.

Bone china; overglaze polychrome decoration, gilding.

The Calenda collection from the leading IPM artist Yulia Chistyakova is an exquisite combination of traditions and modern trends. The design was inspired by the traditional festive decor – a Christmas wreath, as well as the artistic heritage of the Imperial Porcelain Factory, namely, the designs of one of the leading porcelain painters of the XIXth century, Fyodor Krasovsky.
Calenda meets one of the leading modern design trends: it can be used both on its own and combined with other series. The luxurious needles of the wreath are in tune with the Azur collection, and the scarlet ribbons – with Scarlett. The drawing itself is an exquisite detail: it was applied using a special technology with relief paint.
The collection got its name from the word "Calendae" – the first day of the month in Latin. In Old Slavonic, this word evolved to "Kolyada" and was most often used as a folk name for Christmas Eve.

IDYLL

«Novelty of 2023» is a series of Mugs and Tea cups that complemented the popular collections of the factory - "Azur" and "Scarlett". The strict, noble geometry of the decor hints at the historical collections of the Imperial Porcelain Manufactory. Expressive colors give relevance to « Idyll». This series is represented by five shades: Nero, Coral, Lime, Primula and Indigo.

Bone china; overglaze polychrome decoration, gilding.
